Essay:

The book I chose was The Stand by Stephen King. It is written in the omniscient form. It is an intriguing novel about a super-flu epidemic that sweeps the world, and wipes out 99% of the human population. It follows the lives of certain groups of people around the United States that survived the disease, and how they all had similar dreams to meet in Nebraska. Soon, they start fighting a “dark” man named Randall Flagg that tries to take over the rest of the human species, and people start to take sides. It is very gripping and suspenseful, and one of my favorite novels.
